

HEADMASTER'S WELCOME

With a festive covering of snow, the Sixth Form Christmas Dinner - reviewed below, Christmas artwork from Prep pupils in the windows of shops and businesses on the High Street, Prep Festival of Carols, Christmas Jumper day (photos within!), rehearsals in full flow for this weekend's Community concert, a wonderful 'Christmas tradition' themed assembly given by Mr Law's tutor group, and with preparations for our carol services at the end of the term nearing completion, there is no escaping the fact that the Autumn Term is, somehow, nearly at an end.

The front page picture shows the wonderful conditions that our intrepid First and Second years enjoyed in their Outdoor Ed trip to the Yorkshire Dales with hiking and caving activities offering an exhilarating challenge, read on for a full review from Mr Mathers. Alongside careers news, econ/bus society and working lunch updates, we also read of rowing adventures and some significant success on the water last weekend, despite the freezing and challenging conditions. Well done to Archie and Harry for their efforts at the GB selection event.

This week is Giving Week, and I am grateful to pupils and families for donating in support of the Houses' efforts to provide a variety of goods for those in our region who will benefit over the festive season from this generosity. I know that many of our pupils volunteer in a variety of ways to make a difference, and building an understanding of the value of offering time, support, skills or donations is an important part of what we do via the House activities as well as in other ways in school.

I hope to see many of you at the Community Christmas Carol Concert this weekend, and look forward to our final week of school before pupils head off for a well earned break.

A winter wonderland in the Yorkshire Dales last weekend

A WINTERY WEEKEND IN THE DALES

Twenty First and Second Year pupils headed to the Yorkshire Dales over the first weekend in December for a weekend of caving and hiking. For some pupils it was their first Outdoor Education residential, and it was going to be an action packed weekend of activity.

Arriving at our comfortable bunkhouse accommodation on the Friday evening we settled down to our evening meal of bolognese before our activity briefings for the weekend. The pupils divided themselves into two groups (they chose boys and girls!) and after a quick blast on the pool table and ping pong we headed to bed.

A hearty breakfast of cereal, porridge, toast, eggs, bacon and beans greeted us in the morning and then we kitted up for the day. Hikers got their boots on and cavers got into their furry suits and oversuits.

The hiking group headed off to summit Whernside (the tallest of the Yorkshire 3 peaks) from Ribbleshead, passing under the world famous Ribbleshead viaduct, on a clear Saturday morning. There was some ice on the path but the group coped well and had fantastic views of the Dales from the summit. The cavers drove round to Kingsdale first and went in to explore Yordas cave and the first set of challenging squeezes of the day. After a lunch break in the minibus, the cavers drove back round to Ribbleshead and explored Runscar and Thistle caves close to the viaduct. After a chilly day of activity both groups headed back to the bunkhouse for some hot chocolate, biscuits and hot showers. Helping in the kitchen was an option as pupils and staff prepared an evening meal of sausages, cheesy mash, veg and gravy which was enjoyed by all. An evening game of Trading Post followed with each small group of pupils aiming to make the most money by completing various challenges available to them. It was a closely fought game with most groups producing a similar profit. Sunday saw the groups swap over, taking part in the activity that they didn't do on the Saturday. The hikers tackled Whernside but with an extra layer of the snow to overcome and the cavers had a reduced day of just two caves as the access road to the third cave was blocked by snow. After returning to the house for a thorough clear up of bedrooms and toilets, we loaded up and headed back to school.

My thanks go to all the accompanying staff on the trip: Miss Street, Mr Lee, Mrs Thompson and Mr Tomlinson.

THE HEAT IS ON!

Last week Maisy and Erin brought Psychology into the sphere of Business as they explored, "Stress and Success: Understanding the Psychological Impact on Business Performance". In a well researched and well delivered presentation they discussed the idea of an optimum level of stress, as well as exploring the impact of stress on a worker. They queried whether Google should be a benchmark for worker treatment, before opening the floor to discussion as to whether Google really do offer the utopia we often imagine and, even if they do, is it realistic in a world where AI poses a greater threat and makes capital and labour more substitutable, for other firms to follow suite.

Work-life balance is something we often discuss in Working Lunches, and something students are increasingly aware of when considering career paths, as more appreciation of the physical and mental consequences of stress emerge. We are grateful to Maisy and Erin for being so generous with their time and for selecting and giving such a thought provoking presentation.

MANAGING YOUR FUTURE - FAME WORKING LUNCH

"What is your dream job?" This was the opening question posed by our Working Lunch speaker this week to all members of the audience assembled to hear her speak, as she tested the ability of the Sixth Form to respond to an unanticipated question. How would you respond if put on the spot??

This week we were delighted to welcome back a familiar face, Hannah Carey (Class of 2013) for her fourth WL. Now a Project Manager at North Yorkshire Council, Hannah went to Sunderland University to do Business and Applied Management and this involved securing a placement year for herself, where she worked for Lear Corporation- a Tier 1 manufacturer for Nissan. After she graduated, she joined the Project Management graduate scheme at Network Rail and, after promotions with Network Rail, she moved to North Yorkshire Council where she works on complex, multidisciplinary projects. These range from implementing IT system updates, improvements to health and social care processes and installing EV infrastructure across North Yorkshire. Hannah discussed her approach to progressing through education and into the working world and gave the assembled through an insight into the practical steps she took to build the foundations of her career.

The audience asked many superb questions and were keen to absorb advice. We are really grateful for the very honest and useful guidance from Hannah and her continued support of the EconBus department.

HEALTHCARE AND ECONOMICS AT ECON BUS SOCIETY

This week Health Economics was the topic of EconBus Soc, and two hopeful Medics, Ammar Soni and Syed Omer, shed light on the intersection of healthcare and economics.

They examined the problems currently faced by the NHS in terms of scarcity of funding, brain drain and growing expectations due to an aging population and advances in medical science, before evaluating a range of viable solutions.

With an audience made up of multiple disciplines they gave an excellent and confident presentation which had clearly been well researched, and coped well with a deluge of questions at the end.

We are very grateful to them for being so generous with their time and ideas at such a busy stage of the term.

SHINING A LIGHT ON 'MODERN SLAVERY'

Following on from classroom discussions on the nature and extent of modern slavery in the UK and beyond, the Politics Society reached out to the Wilberforce Institute and were delighted to welcome to school Dr Alicia Heys.

The talk began with a wrestle over the complexity of the term 'modern slavery' and its confusion in many quarters with human trafficking, better understanding that the definition is predicated on the nature of the purpose, consent, victim and the location of the act. It could involve labour, criminal or sexual exploitation, domestic servitude or organ harvesting. The Global Slavery Index estimates 40.34 million people are in modern slavery around the world, with around 100,000 victims in the UK. Interestingly the top nationalities for the victims were Albanian, British and then Eritrean. We learned of the National Referral Mechanism and the work of the Independent Anti-Slavery Commissioner, working with public authorities but offering an arguably patchy approach to the issue. One of the biggest challenges is a lack of transparency in supply chains. Any company in the UK with a turnover of £36m or more must now write a modern slavery statement, outlining what they are doing to mitigate against the potential risks of modern slavery in their company, but even this requirement comes with flaws; it relies on self-regulation, the content of submissions is very variable and a form can say that they 'are doing nothing'.

The Wilberforce Institute, operating out of and involving staff from the University of Hull, conducts considerable research and collaborates with various public and private bodies. Latest research has improved in its incorporation of survivors in its research, but suffers from research fatigue on the issue. Dr Heys concluded that the problem was not insurmountable but was significant, and that greater awareness and more watertight regulation will be required if we are to adequately protect citizens from such peril.

MORRISBY CAREERS PROGRAMME COMPLETION

This week and last saw the completion of the Morrisby Careers programme for members of the Fifth Year. The careers testing and interviewing experience is offered to all members of the year group and is planned to coincide with and assist them in the shaping of their plans for A Level and beyond.

The system comprises a lengthy two hour session of psychometric and skills testing, measuring a diverse range of skills, attributes, interests and inclinations. The testing is very similar to that being used by a range of global employers as part of their selection and recruitment processes. All of this culminates in a lengthy report, presented in a format consisting of charts and diagrams showing pupils areas of strength and ability.

Following on from this all involved students were then scheduled a bespoke one-on-one interview with an external trained careers professional. These interviewers had prepared their interview using the findings of the individual reports and were then well positioned to engage the pupils in informed dialogue over their current and future plans. The reports and the interview notes will be permanently accessible to the students and through them to their parents, and can be a valuable source of reference at points in the future. Current members of the Fourth Year will be offered a similar provision in the late autumn of next academic year.

CHRISTMAS JUMPER DAY IN AID OF HOUSE CHARITIES

A huge thank you to everyone who wore their Christmas jumper on Wednesday to raise money for the House Charities! A fantastic amount was raised, with money still coming in!

SIXTH FORM CHRISTMAS DINNER

Last Friday evening saw the Festive Season welcomed in style in the form of the annual Sixth Form Christmas Dinner for students and staff.

Following a lot of hard work by our Estates Team, Sodexo staff and a good number of willing volunteers guided and directed by Miss Gamble, The Princess Alexandra Auditorium was transformed into a wintry wonderland of white linen, twinkling lights and, of course Christmas crackers.

Students arrived dressed to the nines and in suitably festive mood for pre-dinner drinks in the Atrium and a few photographs. Thank you to our Sodexo colleagues for a delicious meal for well over 200 and served with faultless precision. We are so fortunate to have such an exceptional catering team here at Yarm. The night continued with a knockout festive set from our talented musicians, BRACK, prompting some impromptu dancing from the students. A fitting start to the festivities planned over the last few weeks and an evening that was enjoyed by all. Thanks go to our Estates Team, Sodexo staff, Mr Bromyard, our team of student party planners and especially Miss Gamble for masterminding the event.

A very Merry Christmas to you all.

ROWING

Rutherford Head Report

Snowy ground, frozen trailer wheels, and ice-covered boats couldn't stop YSBC racing at this year's Rutherford Head on the Tyne River. Running over 4500 metres, 33 athletes from the 4th year and above raced in 8 boats over the day. Rutherford Head attracts the best competition in the autumn term, and our pupils performed exceptionally, coming home with first, second, and third-place finishes.

Winning their event was our men's J18 coxless quad of Archie Norton, Harry Wildridge, Sai Sidaginamale, and Will Jeavons. Despite getting stuck behind a university-coxed four the whole way down the course, our boys secured the win with a time of 12:24 and were the 4th fastest quad of the event.

Next with a second-place finish in the men's J16 coxless quad were Harry D'Ambrogio, Patrick Tulloch, Noah

Vincent, and Zeph Atkinson-Talib. For this event, Noah moved up from the J15 squad and significantly impacted the crew. This crew has shown strong development over the term and reduced a 1-minute 30-second gap on the senior boats at the start of the year to 16 seconds.

Two of our girl's crews took third place on Saturday. The J18 crew of Hannah Stewart, Hannah Bettinson, Kitty Brown & Storm Smith finished with a time of 16:06. In contrast, the J16 crew of Poppy Bell, Abby Stewart, Becca White & Charlotte Maund finished with a time of 16:32. The introduction of J15 Charlotte into the crew added new layers of development as the J16 girls quad closed a 1 minute 25-second gap on our senior girls from the start of the year down to 26 second seconds last weekend.

Congratulations to all crews that race in extremely cold and challenging conditions. All boats came away with valuable development and race experience, and we are incredibly proud of the effort and resilience shown by the athletes at the weekend.

GB Training Day

Following a cold Saturday of racing at Rutherford Head, 6th formers Archie Norton & Harry Wildridge were invited down to Caversham (home of the GB rowing team) for a training day with the top junior rowers in the country. This made for a long weekend for our pupils after completing 4 race pieces on Sunday morning in mixed crews. On all pieces our pupils finished in the top half of the rankings. Sunday proved to be a valuable experience and opportunity for our athletes and was a great achievement to be invited.
